

PROPOSALS
BY JOSEPH M. SANDERSON, for publishing by subscription, BIOGRAPHY OF THE SIGNERS TO THE

Declaration of Independence, ACCOMPANIED WITH PLATES; which will be annexed a history of the proceedings of congress during the passage of the law, and the Declaration itself, with fac-simile engravings of the signatures.

By PAUL ALLEN, Esq.

TO THE PUBLIC.

It seems a little surprising that amongst so many subjects as have been presented for American Biography, the lives of those who have affixed their signatures to the Declaration of Independence have been looked over or disregarded. The eyes of usurpers have dwelt with rapture upon the document that announced to the world that the United Colonies were, and of right ought to be, free, sovereign, and independent states; while we are better acquainted with the handwriting than with the character of many of those illustrious men who have added their signatures to that immortal document. The founders of the only republic on the globe, have, with few splendid exceptions, gone to their rest, and it behooves a generous posterity, desirous of their obligations, to preserve their names. The longer we neglect the memory of so sacred a debt, the more difficult does the payment become. Traits of individual character are fugitive and evan-escent; and if they are not snatched by the hand of the Biographer, they are lost for ever. The cold grasp of death, will not partake of the oblivion of the body.
It is not the object of the present attempt, deal in that profusion of indiscriminate and unparagoned panegyric, so often and so easily dignified with the name of Biography; we wish to represent the characters they were; they stand in need of no panegetic; and we earnestly solicit from the living relations and friends of those revolutionary patriots all the information that will tend to a development of character, and the wish to show the progress of those patriots from their first resistance of colonial oppression, until they stood forth the noble and undaunted champions of their country's dependence. All this can only be done by a familiar acquaintance with the lives of these men, and whoever of the surviving friends or relatives will furnish facts and circumstances in their possession to unfold and illustrate their characters, shall be entitled to a copy of the work as a recompense. It is contemplated, wherever it is practicable, further to embellish the mediocrity of the work with correct likenesses of the subjects of our biography, executed by the most eminent artists in the country. For this purpose we again solicit the assistance of their surviving relatives and friends. If they will transmit to the publisher any engraving or portrait from which a copy may be taken, the original shall be faithfully returned, and shall likewise be remunerated with a copy of the work. In the first number it is proposed to give an account of the Declaration of Independence, from the first draft that was made on the floor of congress until its final passage into a law, a period embracing much curious and secret history; finally, we propose to add to our first number the Declaration of Independence itself, with fac-simile engravings of the signatures. We have now compendiously stated the objects of our present undertaking, and we hope that it will be unnecessary to mention that no exertions on our part shall be spared.

The public are now in possession of our project, which does indeed seem to be demanded, by the avidity so recently displayed for the possession of the Declaration of Independence, since it is of very little import to become acquainted with a man's hand writing without a previous knowledge of the man. The secret history of our Declaration of Independence, the lives of those who have affixed their signatures to that instrument, accompanied by their likenesses, and finally the Declaration itself with facsimiles of the signatures, will bring into one compact view the prominent facts of that interesting crisis.

Exchange & Broker's Office,

Georgetown, District of Columbia.

ROMULUS RIGGS.

At his office, next door below Craw-ford's tavern, Bridge-st. Georgetown, will exchange all kinds of Bank Notes on the most reasonable terms.—All persons who may have notes on the banks of North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, would do well to call on him, as he is largely in the purchase of that kind of money, and will take it on the most reasonable terms.—Persons travelling to the Western Country may at all times get the Bank Notes of the Western Banks at a fair discount, by calling at his Office. For the information of all persons throughout the U.

States, R. Riggs makes it known, that all of the Banks of the District of Columbia pay their notes on demand in specie; and it would be much to the advantage of the merchants, and trading to the South and west, to encourage the circulation of the Notes of the Banks of Georgetown, Washington and Alexandria, as it will at all times answer for remittances to the large commercial and Atlantic towns.—All persons emigrating or travelling to the westward should be very particular and take the Notes of the Banks of the District of Columbia, as they will find them the most current, there being no counterfeits on the District Banks. The Merchants' Bank of Alexandria has long since failed—all persons should be on their guard, as they will be imposed on.

A YELLOW WOMAN, called Celia

Detcher, in the 23d year of her age, about 5 feet 2 or 3 inches high—marks like moles on the right side of her face, which, with several letters on her left arm, were made with india ink. She is about four-months gone in a state of pregnancy—followed her husband, Jim Clark, a yellow man, who was purchased from this place and taken on in company with a large number of slaves, about two weeks ago, by a man of the name of Baset. It is supposed they have gone to the westward; Celia was born free, and had with her a notarial certificate of her freedom, and description of her person. Her mother, the subscriber, is much afflicted by her manner of going away, and desires that any humane people who may chance to meet with her, will persuade her to return, being apprehensive that when she gets into a strange country, where she will be unknown and out of the reach of her friends and those who would be likely to protect her, attempts may be made by some avaricious and unprincipled persons, to deprive her of her liberty, and sell her for a slave. Should any such attempt be made, fifty dollars reward will be paid to any person who will communicate such information as shall lead to the conviction of the offenders, and the recovery of the woman.

ANACREONTIC.

Come my God of soft desire, Bring with thee the Tean tyre,
And with thy downy purple wing, Gently trill the golden string.
See beneath yon hawthorn's shade, Sweetly sleeps the rosy maid, While the dewy crimson flower, Throws on her cheek the pearly shower.
See the golden ringlets flow, O'er her heaving breast of snow;
Go gently steal the nectar'd sip, From her ripe and rubied lip.
"Tis done, 'tis done, the madd'ning dart, Rattles in her throbbing heart;
The subtle flame of soft desire, Sets her melting heart on fire.

Now Bacchus wade the blushing vine, With roses gem'd with ruby wine; Wreath the garland round my brow, I will, I will, be happy now.

DUMFRIES.

From the Virginia Evangelical Magazine.
HAZARDOUS ENTERPRISE.

Some young gentlemen were lately on a visit to the natural bridge. One of them, a youth of extraordinary activity, determined to inscribe his name on the perpendicular rock which faces the chasm, and supports the arch, higher than any one had ever done before. It was found no difficult work to ascend to that height of ambition. But when this object was accomplished, the young adventurer found, as orators and poets often find, it much more difficult to descend than to rise. Just the reverse of Virgil's facile descensus avariis was true here. In short going down was impossible. There was no alternative, but to fall and be crushed to pieces, or to climb to the top of the rock. In this most perilous situation, the hardy youth, undismayed by the terrors which surrounded him, resolved to make an attempt, which every one regarded as desperate. And while his companions looked on, with anxiety which thrilled through all their limbs, expecting every moment to see him precipitated on the rock, he pursued his way, suspended often by one hand on a projection of the limestone, while with a knife in the other, he picked a place higher up, by which he could get a firm hold. When it is recollected that the rock is almost always moist; that its projections often are loosened and fall; that the precipice is nearly three hundred feet high, and so nearly perpendicular, that a plumb line will descend from top to bottom and scarcely touch; it is impossible to conceive of an undertaking of greater peril, nor of a higher order of resolution and presence of mind than that displayed on this occasion. The ascent required considerably more than an hour. The adventurer rose to the top with unabated vigor, and was hailed by his companions with a shout of joy. But immediately a revolution of his feelings succeeded, and he lay and panted on the earth, totally spent, and for a considerable time unable to rise. I understand that he ascribes his escape to a gracious interposition of providence, and gives this salutary caution, not to indulge the ambition of inscribing the name high on the rock, until one has well considered how he may descend with safety. Bold and successful a craftsman as he is, he is not at all disposed himself to engage in a similar adventure, or to recommend an imitation of it to others.

AFFLICTION.

The world complains of affliction as the worst thing that can befall a man, but for my part I never shall. Were it as bad as we apprehend, how is it that from Adam to this very day, the saints have had so large a share of it? Now, among the many precious fruits of affliction, I shall only name one, and that is, earnestness and importunity with God in prayer. A gracious soul may walk with God in close communion, as Enoch, captivated with the glory of his countenance, and lifted above the world by the outpourings of his love; but this is not the ordinary attainment of the saints in general, it is their mercy to be driven near the throne, and made earnest in their prayers. A good man may walk in the course of religious duties, but affliction gives edge to his devotions, importunity to his petitions, makes him draw nearer to the throne, stay longer, and cry louder.

REMARKS.

The more a woman loves her husband, the more she corrects his faults. The more a man loves his wife, the more he increases her waywardness.

MORE CAPITAL CONVICTIONS.

The trial of Warrington, Rosewain and Holmes, on indictments for murder on the high seas, commenced on Monday last, in the circuit court now sitting in this town, and was concluded yesterday. The jury returned a verdict of guilty against each of the prisoners. Their counsel, however have submitted a motion for a new trial, which we understand will bring before the court questions of law as to the jurisdiction of the court of the U. States. The prisoners were most ably and eloquently defended by their counsel, J. T. Austin, and W. J. Spooner, Esqrs. The indictment states Warrington to be an American, and Rosewain and Holmes, foreigners.

From the New-York National Advocate. JOHN BULL IN NEW-YORK.

That our country and city should be objects of curiosity to Europeans, is not to be wondered at; and that prejudices should exist against some of our habits and institutions, in the minds of persons hostile to the nature of our government, must be expected.

This writer appears to have been sent out with the view of ascertaining the situation of manufactures and mechanics, and he commences his observations by publishing the result of his enquiries in relation to trades generally; and in his distribution of the various branches, and their advantages, he has been peculiarly minute, and, in many cases, very just. He seems to allow, that mechanics, generally, in this country, if they are industrious and capable, cannot fail of doing well. On this head, his representations may be mutually of service.

From trades he goes to literature, and asserts that "a native standard work" is not to be found. It is very true, and is much to be regretted, that we have accustomed ourselves to be so completely governed by the standard of British taste, that Americans are fearful of hazarding an attempt to turn the current into different channels. There are some few, however, who have had courage and enterprise to stem this current, and have succeeded. If Americans, generally will encourage native productions, a native literary character would soon be ours, and these English gentlemen would not upbraid us for being ever indebted to the British for an intellectual repast.

Let us hear this traveller on the subject of professions:

"Our friends A—and N—are unfortunate in being 'learned gentlemen.' Lawyers are as common here as paupers are in England. Indeed for those friends I see no kind of opening. Professional men literally swarm in the United States. An anecdote is told of a gentleman walking in Broadway; a friend passing, he called 'Doctor' and immediately sixteen persons turned round to answer to the name. This is even more characteristic of lawyers. At almost every private door, cellar, or boarding-house, a tin plate is displayed, bearing the inscription 'Attorney at Law.' Clerks are not in demand in this or any other occupation. There are here no very large concerns, and most men are capable of attending to their own business. A shopman or clerk, who would receive in London his board, and a salary of from 30f. to 100f. sterling per annum, would here experience great difficulty in gaining a situation; and if fortunate enough to obtain one, he would not receive more than from 3 to 7 dollars per week, exclusive of board and lodging.

The causes which generate so great a number of 'legal triends' lie beyond the sources of my penetration. Perhaps we may date the frequency of litigation to the intricacy of the profession, which is bottomed on English practice; while the cheapness of college instruction, and the general diffusion of moderate wealth among mechanics and tradesmen, enable them to gratify their vanity by giving their sons a learned education. This also opens the door to them for an appointment; and by the way, the Americans are great place-hunters."

This is pretty well said. Last is the severest cut of all; and it is unfortunately true, that instead of children being placed out to learn useful trades, and to acquire a solid independence, their indulgent fathers give them a profession for which they are not qualified, and they become politicians to look for office.

On the subject of boarding he has a curious paragraph. Any person who has been in London can be no stranger to the mode of living, and must have been familiar with their cold drawn tea and one egg and a slice of toast for breakfast, and can, therefore, judge how true is the following account:

"BOARDING—Persons who are not house-keepers generally live at Boarding-houses or Hotels. A Mechanic pays for his board and lodging, 13s. 9d. to 18s. per week; the usual price is 15s. 9d.; for which he has three meals a day; coffee, with fish or meat for breakfast; a hot dinner; and tea (called supper) in the evening; at which last, the table is filled with cheese, biscuits (called Boston Crackers) molasses, and slices of raw dried beef. Boarding at a moderately respectable house, is 8 dollars a week; for what is termed a transient man; or at the same house, 5 to 6 dollars a week for a three or six months resident. Prices from 8 to 14 dollars a week, according to situation, accommodation and respectability. Very few allow four meals a day, as at that kept by Mrs. Bradish; indeed I am informed that Mrs. B's is the best Boarding House in the United States."

Hear this, Tammany Hall, with your well stocked table! hear this Washington Hall, City Hotel, and little Mr. Niblo, whose boards "groan with the weight of the feast!"—hear this, and give your boarders four meals per day, ye elegant and numerous Boarding Houses of New-York!—The writer who only lived at one house, was not well qualified to decide what was going on in others. He winds up New-York in the following manner, and has some harsh reflections on some customs—let them pass for what they are worth.

"Upon the whole, a walk through New-York will disappoint an Englishman: there is, on the surface of society, a carelessness, a laziness, an unsocial indifference, which freezes the blood and disgusts the judgment. An evening stroll along Broadway, when the lamps are alight, will please more than one at noon day. The shops will look rather better; but their proprietors will not greatly please: their cold indifference may be mistaken by themselves for independence, but no person of thought and observation will ever concede to them that they have selected a wise mode for exhibiting that dignified feeling. I disapprove most decidedly of the obsequious servility of the London shopkeepers, but I am not prepared to go the length of those in New-York, who stand with their hats on, or sit or lie along their counters smoking segars, and spitting in every direction, to a degree of offensive to any man of decent feelings."

Among his clothing is a brown surtout coat, a buff colored Marseilles waistcoat, with small figured pearl buttons; an old drab colored pair of pantaloons, home made of cotton and wool; felled cloth, of same texture and color, for a round about, cut out, but not made.

He will probably make for the north, or my farm, near Shepherdstown; on the road to the latter place he is pretty well known, having assisted frequently, and once within the last ten days, in driving hogs from there.

Grown old and infirm in the duties of his profession, he feels himself under the necessity of attempting something towards the support of his family, which he has not been able hitherto to effect by the small stipend that he has been accustomed to receive. He finds no small portion of his hopes of success, therefore, on the fact, that, though the merits of his paper may not prove equivalent to the small pecuniary cost of it, yet an ample remuneration may be found in the consideration of having relieved a young and helpless family. But he is not without hope, that the work itself will prove to be not altogether unworthy of the public patronage.

A paper upon the plan now proposed, containing a summary of the topics ordinarily inserted in such publications, and at a price so reduced, as to render it accessible to all, is acknowledged by many to have been long wanted. With what ability the one proposed will be conducted, the public will judge. The Editor can, at least, promise, that no pains will be spared either by his own exertions, or by the assistance of literary gentlemen on whose kindness he relies, to give interest and worth to his pages.

In the present tranquil state of the political world, a newspaper editor, is, indeed, cut off from that ever ready source which is to be found in the history of war and bloodshed. But, happily, what is wanting in this view, to feed the cravings of warlike spirits, is more than supplied by the fruitful sources of true and permanent interest which are opened to us by the pacification of the world. There is still left sufficient of theme, which though apparently less brilliant in character or daring in action, is not less splendid or useful than those achievements which lay empires in ruins, and drench fields with blood. The progress of learning, the improvements in arts and sciences, the daily discoveries on agriculture, the impulsion of machinery, by which labor is saved, navigation facilitated, and agriculture and commerce rendered more prosperous—the triumphant march of humanity and religion, by means of asylums for the deaf and dumb, Bible Colonization, and Abolition Societies, Sunday Schools, and various other noble institutions, whereby the blessings of knowledge, of civilization and Christianity are extending throughout the world—these are topics which are fraught with high interest and instruction to those who wish well to the best interests of mankind. It will be the object of the Editor to disseminate information on these subjects, and to furnish motives for their further accomplishment. The earliest foreign news, abstracts of the proceedings of Congress, the political relations of this country towards others, marine intelligence, remarkable occurrences, interesting law reports, and all subjects connected with them, will obtain the earliest notice. Essays, selected and original, on morality and religion, will also find a place in this paper.

Whatever tends to undermine virtue and religion, these great pillars of government, and of social order; whatever is contrary to chastity and decorum; whatever tends to excite disorganization and sedition in government, or animosities and quarrels in society, will be discountenanced and opposed. Personal invectives and recriminations will therefore not be admitted. In short, it will be the study of the Editor to make his paper a repository of whatever is interesting, entertaining and useful to his readers, whether as subjects of government, or as men and members of society, or as philanthropists or Christians. With these views and motives he now appeals to a generous public for their patronage, hoping that the worthy citizens of this place and its vicinity, will at least give him the opportunity of a trial, by which he expects to redeem the pledges now given to carry into effect the high objects of his undertaking.

Gunston for Sale.

THIS elegant estate is situated on the Potomac, 16 miles below Alexandria—it is bounded on three sides by the Potomac and Potomac creek, and contains nearly 3,000 acres of land, level and fertile, to which are attached six shad and herring fisheries, two of which command the river channel. This land will be laid off in four tracts, so as to have one or more fisheries to each; these tracts will be again divided if requisite. This estate is level and beautifully situated, very fertile, and remarkably healthy. Plaster acts with an effect equal to that of any part of Virginia or Pennsylvania.—I have used 500 bushels in twelve months, and such is its beneficial operation, that were I to keep this land I should considerably increase the quantity. A manufacturing mill is distant about two miles, on a stream navigable for vessels carrying 1200 bushels of wheat, where the Baltimore and Dist. of Columbia prices are given for grain; being bounded on 3 sides by water, a small extent only of fence is necessary to inclose the whole; it would be admirably adapted to grazing. The improvements are a large and very substantial brick mansion, 40 by 70 feet, with every necessary out-house, three commodious barns, houses for Negroes, and fish houses at each of the fisheries. 120,000 bricks and 1000 bushels of lime are just burnt on the premises. There is a considerable extent of live fence, both useful and ornamental, two orchards of well selected apples and peach, besides an abundance of other choice fruit. More than 150 acres are in clover, 200 in corn, and land is in preparation for sowing 250 bushels of small grain. Any quantity of hay can be cut from the low grounds, some of which (and all might,) have been reclaimed at a trifling expense. The river and creeks, abound with wild fowl, particularly canvas backs, the woods with deer and a variety of other game. Mules, cattle, highly improved sheep, farming utensils and household furniture can be had. The terms of sale will be accommodating. Property in any of the cities, negroes, bank stock, western lands, or lands near the River, will be taken in payment.—Letters must be addressed to me at Pollock Church, Fairfax county, Virginia.

Valuable Property for Sale.

THE subscriber is desirous of selling a handsomely situated farm, on Hunting creek, in Fairfax county, Virginia, adjoining the Mount Vernon estate, and the lands of general Thomson Mason, four miles from Alexandria, containing about 240 acres; 90 of which are in wood—10 to 50 in thriving meadow of clover and timothy—a part of the residue recently seeded with wheat and rye, and clover, last spring—the whole enclosed with a new post and rail fence.—The improvements are, a comfortable and convenient frame dwelling house with kitchen, smoke house, poultry house, granary and stables.—There is also on this place a rich and productive garden, and a large body of marsh meadow, from which may be saved annually 100 tons of hay, nearly as nutritious as the best timothy or clover.—With the farm would be sold a number of very valuable horses, cows and sheep; waggon, cart, and a variety of farming utensils and household and kitchen furniture; corn, oats and rye, and 40 tons hay. Also, adjoining the one above described, a farm containing 160 acres, recently enclosed, on which is a brick house, which a trifling expense would render comfortable. The soil is excellent, and a considerable part might be easily converted into meadow.—it would be sold with the other or separately. Also, a number of valuable servants, male and female. To prevent unnecessary application, he would observe, that they will only be sold to persons residing in the District or its vicinity, and not to be carried from it. The subscriber will also sell the greater part of his household furniture, which is new and handsome. For terms of all or any part of the above property, apply to NOBLET HERBERT, esq. or

To the Public.

AN unusual sensibility has been excited in the minds of our countrymen by the copper plate engraving of the Declaration of Independence recently published, accompanied by fac-similes of the signatures of those illustrious patriots who framed the document by which our independence was announced to the world. We feel, while we dwell on those signatures, as if we were ushered into the immediate presence of characters so exalted, and we seem for a time to participate in all the emotion which they felt on the approach of so awful a crisis—Hostile armies, desolate fields, towns and cities in conflagration—carnage and death in its most frightful forms appeared in prophetic vision on the one hand, and more than all, the complicated horrors, ignominy and slavery were presented for their acceptance on the other; they deliberated, they paused, they trembled, and at last solemnly appealing to the God of battles, they resolved that the United States were and ought to be free, sovereign and independent. These illustrious patriots, with five solitary exceptions, have now mingled with the common mould—they survive only in their country's glory and in the recollection of a grateful people. But it would be consoling to the present generation, separated as they now are from those patriots, by the intervention of the tomb, to become more intimately acquainted with their revolutionary benefactors. We love to dwell on the features of such men, snatched by the pencil from the oblivion of the grave, and emulate the prominent traits of their biography. Impressed with these ideas, the subscriber proposes, if suitable encouragement is given, to publish the lives of those patriots in numbers, until the whole is completed. The work will be executed in a style not inferior to any European productions, and the portraits by masters of acknowledged merit. The biography will be written by Paul Allen, esq. whose intimacy with the several signers, whose familiarity with the privations and hardships they had undergone, and whose well known talents will be sufficient to ensure the patronage of an enlightened people. In the execution of this work, all that the publisher dares to promise is, that he will endeavor to deserve the confidence of his countrymen, and that no exertion on his part will be wanting to prevent an abuse of that confidence. He ventures to solicit the assistance of those gentlemen in possession of authentic facts and anecdotes, by communicating the intelligence that will serve to illustrate the characters and to enrich the biography of those founders of the American Republic.—Those who are in possession of their portraits would enlarge the obligation by a loan of the same.

A prospectus with the terms will be given in a few days.

PROPOSALS BY JOSEPH M. SANDERSON, for publishing by subscription, A BIOGRAPHY OF THE SIGNERS TO THE Declaration of Independence.

ACCOMPANIED WITH PLATES: To which will be annexed a history of the proceedings of congress during the passage of the law, and the Declaration itself, with fac-simile engravings of the signatures.

By PAUL ALLEN, Esq.

TO THE PUBLIC.

IT seems a little surprising that amongst so many subjects as have been presented for American Biography, the lives of those who have affixed their signatures to the Declaration of Independence have been overlooked or disregarded. The eyes of thousands have dwelt with rapture upon the document that announced to the world that "these United Colonies were, and of right ought to be, free, sovereign, and independent states;" while we are better acquainted with the handwriting than with the characters of many of those illustrious men who have added their signatures to that instrument. The founders of the only remaining republic on the globe, have, with a few splendid exceptions, gone to their graves, and it behoves a generous posterity, sensible of their obligations, to preserve their fame. The longer we neglect the payment of so sacred a debt, the more difficult does the payment become.—Traits of individual character are fugitive and evanescent; and if they are not snatched by the hand of the Biographic Muse, at an early season, from the cold grasp of death, will soon partake of the oblivion of the body.—It is not the object of the present attempt, to deal in that profusion of indiscriminate and unsparing panegyric, so often and so falsely dignified with the name of Biography; we wish to represent the characters as they were; they stand in need of no panegyric; and we earnestly solicit from the surviving relations and friends of those revolutionary patriots all the information that will tend to a development of character. Man is the creature of circumstance; and we wish to show the progress of those patriots from their first resistance of colonial aggression, until they stood forth the noble and undaunted champions of their country's independence. All this can only be done by a familiar acquaintance with the lives of these men, and whoever of the surviving friends or relatives will furnish facts and circumstances in their possession to unfold and illustrate their characters, shall be entitled to a copy of the work as a recompense. It is contemplated, wherever it is practicable, further to embellish the mediated work with correct likenesses of the subjects of our biography, executed by the most eminent artists in the country. For this purpose we again solicit the assistance of their surviving relatives and friends. If they will transmit to the publisher any engraving or portrait from which a copy may be taken, the original shall be faithfully returned, and shall likewise be remunerated with a copy of the work. In the first number it is proposed to give an account of the Declaration of Independence, from the first motion that was made on the floor of congress until its final passage into a law, a period embracing much curious and secret history; finally, we promise to add to our last number the Declaration of Independence itself, with fac-simile engravings of the signatures. We have now compendiously stated the objects of our present undertaking, and we hope that it will be unnecessary to mention that no exertions on our part shall be spared.

The public are now in possession of our project, which does indeed seem to be demanded, by the avidity so recently displayed for the possession of the Declaration of Independence, since it is of very little importance to become acquainted with a man's hand writing without a previous knowledge of the man. The secret history of our Declaration of Independence, the lives of those who have affixed their signatures to that instrument, accompanied by their likenesses, and finally the Declaration itself, with fac-similes of the signatures, will bring into one compact view the prominent facts of that interesting crisis.
